

LARRY BALDWIN - Friday night in Charlottetown we enjoyed a free night. Most boys enjoyed playing five pins. This was the first time for most of the boys to play this game and I include myself in that statement. The scoring is a little more difficult. You don't have as many pins to knock over but you have a smaller ball.

CURT JESCHKE - Augusta, Maine's capital, is located at the head of the Kennebec River with a population of 21,680. Augusta was founded in 1628 by John Alden and Captain Myles Standish. The city was immortalized by the great American writer Henry Wadsworth Longfellow.

BRUCE KEREKES - On April 5th the touring choir was in Fredrickton, New Brunswick, the capital of the province. Everybody was excited. Most of the boys were in Canada for their first time.

BILL JOHNSON - On the way to Augusta, Maine we stopped at Old Sturbridge Village. In the village are many shops, stores, and interesting buildings such as The General Store, the Blacksmith Shop, the church and meeting house, School house, Tinsmith and Coppersmith Shop and a Grist Mill. We ate at the Tavern. We all took a ride on the Carry-all or carriage which went over a covered bridge.
